

It is the most accessible place of the savage island, with a beach lightly lapped by luxuriant palm groves.

Little restaurants, very simple, offer their hospitality to the tourists.

The town of Portsmouth, which points out on the wide Rupert Bay, is the point of departure for the excursions into the island: who will venture, will watch the villages with the poor houses of the local inhabitants, descendants of the ancient Caribbeans.